I have dealt with winegrape growing since the 60's and have seen many pest infestations during my career. I was advising against planting AxR rootstock in the mid 80's when the very first phylloxera infestations were occurring. I observed the cyclical nature of Pierce's Disease as thousands of acres were infected in the 70's and again in the early 90's. I understand the damage the glassy winged sharpshooter could cause if it were to establish in Napa County. WN
